I finally admitted after a visit with my doctor on Thursday morning that I'm suffering burnout. I've was told to take the Thursday/Friday off work, and all of next week as well. You'll see more on this site as I work through things. There is some I want to share.

Part of my recovery involved doing things I enjoy doing. So, I've started Building the Batman Tumbler and will continue that throughout next week.

Trip to Melbourne yesterday evening for my niece's engagement party. Today has been fixing up site formatting issues with the Bathurst 12 Hour GT3 race on in the background.

Recently watched movies

Watched, but didn't really enjoy Carrie (1976). Very much a case of the book being better than the movie.

Babylon = bonkers!

Currently watching on TV

Little TV this week, other than to watch Long, Long Time, an episode of The Last of Us that became an instant classic.

TV Seasons I've Completed contains a comprehensive list of all that I've watched from start to finish.

Currently playing on my PS5

As much as I'm enjoying Forspoken I went back to Stray in the evenings. Sometimes playing a game late at night is not conducive to sleep 😊. It turned out I was closer to the Stray Platinum trophy than I thought and so I completed the Catinum trophy (as I choose to call it).

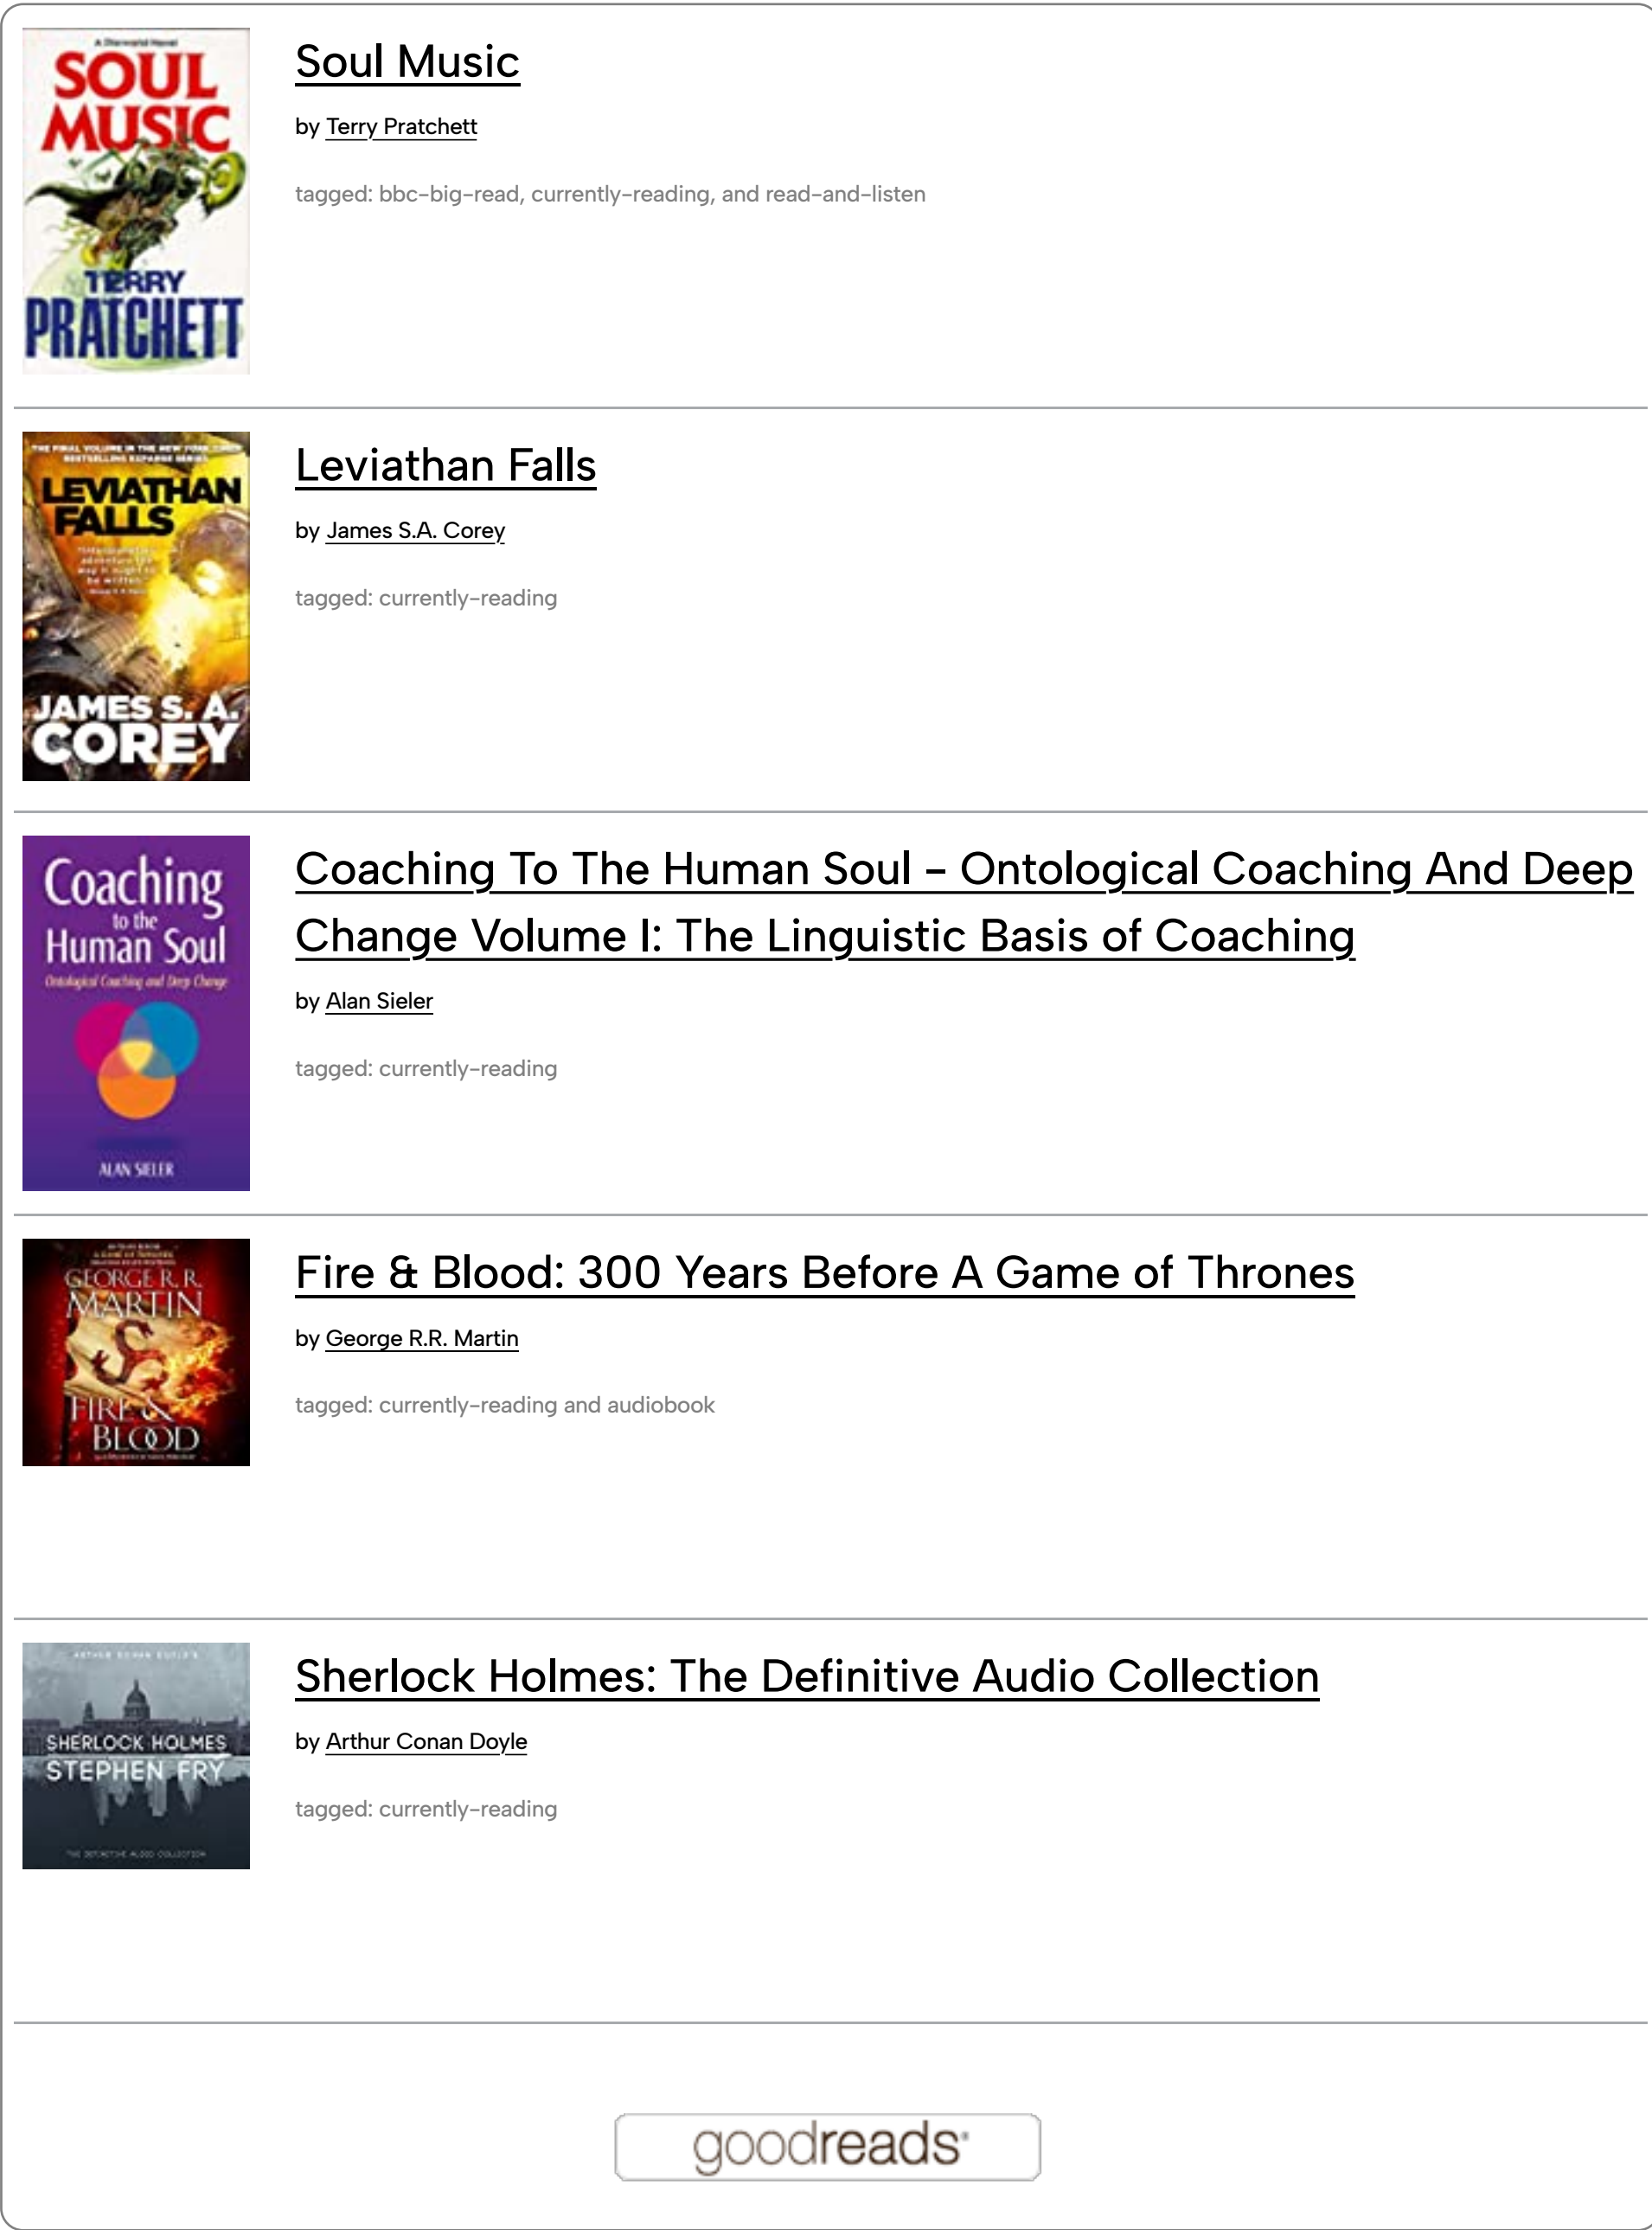

Currently reading

Finished Carrie and then watched the movie. I compared the two in Carrie verses Carrie.

Started the ninth and final book in the Expanse series, Leviathan Falls. It will be sad to see the crew of the Rocciante leave at the end.

And, for a late drive home from Melbourne to Bendigo, I had Soul Music on the car stereo. I like to have either an audiobook or podcast when driving, especially when it's late and I'm tired. I'm slowly working my way through all the new series of Discworld audiobooks.

You can see my full list of books, read, and wanting to read on my Goodreads page.
